

The Book of Hours, (German, 14th. c),
Takamiya collection, Borthwick Institute

Constantine lecturing on uroscopy,
Bodleian, Rawl. C.328, f. 3r (Italy, 13th c.)

Funded by WROCAH, the Centre for Medieval
Studies and the
Department of History,
University of York

Medieval Autographs, Holographs and Contemporary Copies: Methods and Discoveries

FRIDAY 5 DECEMBER 2014

Huntingdon Room, King's Manor, University of York

PROGRAMME

2:30-3:45 pm (parallel sessions)

The Hand of Hoccleve

(Prof. Linne Mooney, CMS, University of York)

Evidence and Arguments: Three cases of Early Medieval 'Autographs': Boniface, Alcuin, and John Scotus

(Dr Mary Garrison, CMS, University of York)

Tea Break

4.15-5.15 pm (one session)

Changes in Parchment across a Millennium – changes in production techniques as clues to date and origin

(Mr Jiří Vnouček, Royal Copenhagen Library/Centre for Medieval Studies)

Biomolecular Codicology: How new techniques can reveal surprises in the parchment of a single codex. The example of a glossed twelfth-century copy of Luke's Gospel.

(Dr Sarah Fiddymont, Marie Curie Research Fellow,
University of York)

Break

5:30-6:30 pm KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

Arabic Medicine at Monte Cassino: A Manuscript Witness from the Desk of Constantine the African

(Prof. Francis Newton, Duke University
Dr Erik Kwakkel, Leiden University)

6:30-8:00 pm BUFFET SUPPER FOR ALL